Castle Rock Investment Company Announces Support of SaveOurRetirement.com

(CASTLE ROCK, COLORADO JANUARY 26, 2015) Castle Rock Investment Company has announced its support of the Department of Labor's (DOL) effort to more broadly define fiduciaries as "those persons who render investment advice to plans and IRAs for a fee." By amending the regulatory definition of the term "fiduciary," the DOL will require all investment advice to adhere to the fiduciary standard set forth under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act.

"The DOL's proposal would ensure that all financial professionals have a legal obligation to put the interests of their customers first when offering retirement advice," said Michele Suriano, President of Castle Rock Investment Company. "We must close this 'Retirement Advice Loophole' to better protect Americans from conflicts of interest that result in their retirement accounts being drained by hidden fees and second-rate investment options."

About the "Save Our Retirement" Initiative

Supporters of the broader fiduciary standard, including AARP and other consumer groups, recently launched the "Save Our Retirement" initiative. The campaign, which includes a website with a petition for supporters to sign, urges visitors to "join the campaign to get important updates as the Department of Labor tries to strengthen rules that apply to retirement investing."
